TEACH CHILD TO LIKE ALL KINDS OF WHOLESOME FOOD

A meal in which all the important kinds of food are represented tends to keep the child in good condition and to give him good habits of eating. Food specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture say: The liking for a large range of foods is desirable from the standpoint of diet and also of manners, for it helps to prevent a person from becoming a disagreeable table companion—one who is "fussy" about his food. Meals that are planned carefully help also to give the child some little idea of what those who know most about foods have in mind when they speak of a "balanced"—or, better, a right ly chosen ration. With children it is far more important to suggest the value of such a ration by the character of the meals given to them than to try to tell them what it is or to what extent it has been worked out.
